

'The Transformers Project'
is a free initiative helping employers and learning providers enhance training and workplace skills.

The Association of Teachers and Lecturers and their partners have developed a confidential training and productivity online survey. The survey is for employers, employees, teachers and learners. The survey results are analysed by our specialist academics team who will send you a report outlining where improvements can be made.

- Discover the full range of skills used by your workforce.
- Recommend ways to make better use of existing skills.
- Discover how current training may be helping or hindering your productivity.
- Recommend areas for training development.

All it takes is 20 minutes per survey and we will do the rest.

We are an all-embracing national partnership funded directly by Government through the Union Learning Fund and the Association of Teachers and Lecturers. Our partners are contributing their status, knowledge and skills in support of The Transformers Project. Our ambition is to advance the status of those people who support and develop others in the workplace to advance our economy and improve working lives.

All responses will be treated with strictest confidence and are produced under University ethical guidelines. You may withhold your company name if you wish.
